HISTORICAL SKETCH

The Chicago and Alton Railroad began service in 1847 in the State of Illinois as the Alton and Sangamon Railroad, which by the early 1850s linked Alton to Springfield and to Joliet. Financial reverses forced the company through several bankruptcies and name changes until about 1855 when it was reorganized as the Chicago and Alton Railroad.

The heyday of the Chicago and Alton Railroad occurred after the Civil War when it operated nearly 1000 miles of track. By 1879 the line was complete: beginning in Chicago, it bridged the Mississippi River at Louisiana, Missouri, extended through the town of Mexico to bridge the Missouri River at Glasgow and arrived at Kansas City, its western terminus, all on its own rails.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The collection consists of a volume of plat maps of towns and cities in Illinois and Missouri through which the Chicago and Alton Railroad ran between the years 1880 and 1890. The maps are hand drawn, with the exception of one sheet for Kansas City, and show the area of the community where the tracks and depots were located. The plats are arranged numerically; the plat numbers appear in the lower left-hand corner of the page. The order of the maps does not appear to represent the route of the railway.
