Historical Note:

Harold Mann was born in Boston in 1921. Mann served in the U.S. Army throughout World War II and in the U.S. Air Force during the Korean War. After traveling the world through the Army, Mann married Sylvia Kaplan in 1946 after four months of dating. Together they owned and operated a filling station in Boston until Mann was called back to service for the Korean War. The family then moved to Germany and other locations within Europe. Mann retired in 1965 and then began a new adventure with Trans World Airlines (TWA) in the Kansas City area. Mann had a variety of interests such as reading, athletics, watch making, music, Temple, and continuing his education through college courses. He and his wife were also avid dancers. Mann spent a copious amount of time volunteering for various programs: the Jewish War Veterans Mo-Kan Post #605; the Veterans Affairs Hospital pharmacy and psychiatric unit for over 20 years; the City of Hope as a holiday gift wrapper; and as a historian for ROMEOS (Retired Old Man's Eating Organization). Harold Mann passed away on December 16, 2007.
