BIOGRAPHY:

In 2001, Forever Green of Missouri, LLC, a real estate company owned by John Cameron, purchased a half mile strip of levee land in North Kansas City originally owned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE). Following the company's subsequent erection of billboards on this property, the North Kansas City Levee District (NKCLD) appropriated this land without compensation, whereupon Forever Green filed a lawsuit to retain its ownership. During the course of three years of legal preparation, Cameron undertook extensive research of levees, state and county borders, land management, and legal cases in the Greater Kansas City area dating as far back as 1819 and compiled a large collection of topographical maps, some of which were used as trial exhibits. Despite these efforts, Forever Green lost the case and the property in 2004, retaining only three billboards alongside the Missouri River, while the appropriated land became the only levee district established by a circuit court in the state.
