Historical Note:

Congregation Shir Chadash, located in Overland Park, Kansas, considered itself a “traditional” synagogue, a term that disallowed the joining of a Conservative or Orthodox movement. The Congregation focused on involvement, fellowship, and family strength. The Congregation served members of all ages through various activities, fundraisers, and committees. Congregation Shir Chadash is no longer in existence.

Arrangement:

The collection has been arranged into two folders.

Scope and Content Note:

The Congregation Shir Chadash Collection features two member directories as well as newsletters ranging from July to November 1980 from the synagogue. The newsletters outline the difficulty the Congregation had finding a rabbi because of lack of funding and movement affiliation.
