George Cresswell (1796-1871) emigrated to the United States from his native England in 1821. After living briefly in Pennsylvania he brought his family to Washington County in the new state of Missouri. There he acquired large holdings of land and became involved in farming, lead mining and smelting, flour milling, and the mercantile trade. His home and business activities eventually were established at Aptus, on Mineral Fork Creek about ten miles north of Potosi, the county seat. Today the Cresswell house and ruins of the lead furnace still stand and are owned by a descendent of George Cresswell.

The Cresswell papers include correspondence, land documents, legal papers, slave documents, tax receipts, account books from the furnace and store, miscellaneous business papers, local school records, and other family papers.

The correspondence folders (1-7) contain letters from George Cresswell's relatives, most prolifically his father and brother, who remained in England. They are concerned mostly with family matters, but there are also interesting observations on economic and social conditions in early Victorian Britain. Other letters deal largely with Cresswell's business affairs, although there are some letters from relatives in the gold-mining areas of California.

The land, legal, slave, and tax papers (Folders 8-24) contain useful information on the extent of the family's property holdings.

The furnace account book (Folder 25) includes records of "Lead Hauled to Selma" (1853-1854) and mineral received, smelted, and shipped to Aptus (1868-1876). The store ledger (1868-1874) and business papers (Folders 26-38) detail the family's commercial dealings with local residents and St. Louis, Missouri, wholesalers. Especially valuable are records of the Cresswells' accounts with Chadbourne & Forster of St. Louis, who marketed the lead produced at the Aptus furnace.

Also in the collection are papers of George F. Cresswell, M.D., concerning economic and social conditions, and especially the welfare of child laborers in Washington County's "tiff" diggings, during the Great Depression. There are also nineteenth century clerk's records from Washington County school district #1.

- 12 Land papers, 1870-1925 (5 items).
- 13 Land papers, fragments and undated (16 items).
- 14 Legal papers, 1830-1839 (4 items).
- 15 Legal papers, 1840-1849 (7 items).
- 16 Legal papers, 1850-1859 (9 items).
- 17 Legal papers, 1860-1869 (15 items).
- 18 Legal papers, 1870-1879 (5 items).
- 19 Legal papers, 1880-1909 and undated (8 items).
- 20 Slave papers, 1833-1855 and undated (13 items).
- 21 Tax papers, 1840-1859 (27 items).

For the most part these are receipts for the payment of various real estate, merchant's, and personal taxes. Several include lists of Cresswell land holdings. Included are receipts to Stephen R. Cresswell, dated 31 October 1859, for payment of "a Special Tax for paying the subscription of [Washington] County to the capital stock of the St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroad Company."
- 22 Tax papers, 1860-1869 (42 items).

For the most part these are receipts for the payment of various county, state, and federal taxes. Several include lists of Cresswell land holdings. The increase in U.S. federal taxation efforts during the Civil War is well documented, including a federal income tax form for 1866.
- 23 Tax papers, 1870-1879 (14 items).

For the most part these are receipts for the payment of various county, state, and federal taxes. Several include lists of Cresswell land holdings. Of particular interest are sheets of U.S. Internal Revenue liquor and tobacco tax coupons.
- 24 Tax papers, 1880-1911 and undated (19 items).

These are receipts for the payment of various state and county taxes. Several include descriptions of Cresswell land holdings.
- 25 Furnace account book, 1853-1876 (1 item, 4½" x 7").

The furnace ledger covers two distinct time periods. The first, for the years 1853 and 1854, has records for "Lead hauled to Selma," and "Mineral hauled into the furnace." The second period covers the years 1868 to 1876, and in general devotes one page to mineral received and the facing page to lead produced and/or shipped, often to Cadet after 1870. After George Cresswell's death in 1871 there are occasional distinctions among "Mineral of the Estate,” “Mineral from Mill Property,” and “Publick Mineral.” There is one section devoted to “Pluckin Digers,” 1875.

- 26 Store ledger, 1868-1874 (1 item, 346 pages).
This is the individual account ledger for the general store located near the furnace. The volume is indexed at the front according to the surname of the customer.
- 27 Chadbourne & Forster, 1856-1875 (93 items).
Accounts, receipts, and other business papers concerning Theo. Forster & Co. (1856-1857) and Chadbourne & Forster (1860-1875), commission merchants of Selma and St. Louis, Mo., respectively. The Cresswells marketed lead through “C & F,” and many of these items are confirmations of sales, noting the date, amount of lead, commission and other charges, and the amount credited to the Cresswell account. After 1871 George Cresswell's estate continued in account with “C & F.”
- 28 Moody, Michel & Co., 1867-1874 (43 items).
Receipts and other business papers concerning the Cresswells' dealings with Moody, Michel & Co. of St. Louis, Mo., “wholesale grocers and importers of foreign wines & liquors, manufacturers of domestic liquors & rectifiers of whiskey.”
- 29 Samuel C. Davis & Co., 1854-1874 (86 items).
Invoices and other business papers concerning George Cresswell's dealings with “Sam'l C. Davis & Co.” of St. Louis, MO., “wholesale dealers in groceries, dry goods, boots and shoes.”
- 30 St. Louis merchants (not elsewhere classified), 1852-1907 (103 items).
Bills and receipts from various merchants located in St. Louis, Mo., including: Doan, King & Co.; Squire & Reed (iron merchants); Blow, Curd & Co.; Fiske, Knight & Co.; Burriss & Bond; and many others.
- 31 Miscellaneous business records, receipts, etc., 1837-1849 (41 items).
For the most part these are promissory notes due George Cresswell.
- 32 Miscellaneous business records, receipts, etc., 1850-1859 (45 items).
- 33 Miscellaneous business records, receipts, etc., 1860-1869 (24 items).
