Arthur Witman worked for the St. Louis Post Dispatch from October 1932 until his retirement in 1969. In addition to local news stories, Witman covered Winston Churchill's "Iron Curtain" speech, and the presidential campaigns of Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson for the Post. He also documented the construction of the St. Louis Arch from 1963 to 1967.

After his retirement Witman taught a photography class at Southern Illinois University and a workshop for the Winona School of Professional Photography. He also planned to publish a book using his photos of the St. Louis Arch. This project evolved into a panoramic book of St. Louis for Doubleday & Company publishers. Unfortunately he never finished the book. Witman did some freelance work in his retirement for Monsanto, the Missouri Botanical Garden and the Saturday Evening Post.
