Esley Hamilton donated these slides on June 6, 2011

F. Ray Leimkuehler served as the supervising architect of the St. Louis city school system from 1948 to 1956.

This collection includes images of many St. Louis architectural landmarks, some of which are no longer extant, such as the old St. Louis Club at Locust and Ewing and the original top stage tower of Second Baptist Church on Kingshighway. The collection includes notecards describing the images and articles discussing Mr. Leimkuehler's career. The slides date only from 1950.
